"Just when we need this viable organization the most, something like this happens." Others felt that the hostilities were instigated by a "few" and that the majority of the members would rather have waited and democratically voted to elect new officers in December, if feelings of disenchantment of the present ones were felt.

Sarann Knight-Predy, a member, expressed concern over the meeting, "not so much due to the "carrying's on" of certain individuals quite unknown and rather new to the community who instigated the turmoil, but the lowering perhaps of this vital and important organization, one which is so badly needed in the community."

Canson did note that "irregardless of what some may feel, Gaines is still the president until the December election. The action that a chosen few have taken is in definite violation of the organization's by-laws."

Gaines, who has already decided against seeking reelection to that post, was unavailable for comment, as was the man who wishes to succeed him, James Allen. The other candidate for the chapter's Presidency, Lubertha Johnson said to the Vegas Voice by phone that she was "very sorry to see the events of last Sunday occur."
