Biographical Note

Archaeologist Richard Howard Brooks was born in Big Pine, California on July 5, 1926. He joined the Navy at age 15 and began his college education after his military service. Brooks earned a Ph.D. in archaeology from the University of Colorado, Boulder. He married Sheilagh Thompson in 1951 and the couple had two daughters, Kathleen and Carolyn.

Richard Brooks began working at Nevada Southern University (the future University of Nevada, Las Vegas) in 1966 as an archaeologist and research associate for the Desert Research Institute. He later became director of the Desert Research Institute and was instrumental in the creation of the Marjorie Barrick Museum of Natural History, where he also served as director. He also co-founded Archeo-Nevada in Las Vegas and the Nevada Archeological Association. Richard and Sheilagh worked together on several archaeological digs, including Tule Springs and the Stewart and Kiel Ranch burial sites. Richard Brooks passed away on June 24, 2011.

Forensic anthropologist Sheilagh Thompson Brooks was born in California on December 10, 1923. She completed her doctorate in physical sciences at the University of California, Berkeley in 1951, becoming the first woman to do so. She married archaeologist Richard Brooks in 1951 and the couple had two daughters, Kathleen and Carolyn.

Sheilagh Brooks taught at various colleges throughout the western United States, including teaching summer courses at Nevada Southern University (later the University of Nevada, Las Vegas). She began teaching full-time at the University of Colorado, Boulder in 1963. In 1966, the Brooks family moved to Las Vegas, Nevada where Sheilagh became the first full-time professor of anthropology at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas (UNLV).

In addition to teaching, Brooks was involved in historic and archaeological preservation efforts in Nevada. She is noted for leading a forensic study in the 1970s of the Kiel Ranch murders. Brooks became a board member of the Nevada Division of Historic Preservation and Archaeology in 1978. She received both the Distinguished Faculty Award and Distinguished Professor Award from UNLV in the 1980s. Sheilagh Brooks died on February 3, 2008. UNLV honored her by creating the Sheilagh Brooks Osteology Research Laboratory in 2011.

Scope and Contents Note

The Richard and Sheilagh Brooks Papers (1919-2003) are comprised of materials collected during their tenure as professors of Archaeology and Anthropology, respectively, at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas. Material contains biographical files, correspondence, research papers, photographs, and reports. Also included are books, article reviews written by Richard and Sheilagh Brooks, student scholarship, two VHS recordings, and two Betamax recordings about pottery and weaving. There is also a file on reburial issues that contains correspondence and an amendment to Nevada State law regarding the handling of exhumed bodies. The bulk of the collection dates between 1970 and 1990 and centers on the Archaeological work done by the Brooks in Nevada and the Death Valley, California region.
