Biographical Note

Scott Rayer is a radio and television broadcast enthusiast who has been regularly recording (known as airchecking) broadcast radio and TV shows since the 1980s. His interest with television shows about Las Vegas started in the 1970s with the Vega$ television series starring Robert Urich and continued after a visit to Las Vegas in 1985. Rayer moved to Southern Nevada in 2000 and noted the proliferation of programs specifically about tourism in Las Vegas so he continued to record programs from both local and national networks. As of 2023, Rayer resides in Southern Nevada and airchecks television programs about Las Vegas.

Scope and Contents Note

The Scott Rayer Collection of Television Programs about Las Vegas, Nevada (1988-2023) contains digitized broadcast commercial television shows about various topics related to Las Vegas, Nevada that were recorded by Scott Rayer as his way of "airchecking" television content he enjoyed about Las Vegas, Nevada. Airchecking is a broadcast industry term that refers to a recording of a broadcast from radio or television created for archival purposes. The television programs represent a broad range of genres including entertainment, news, documentary, and talk shows. Television shows include programming that aired on local networks such as CCTV-4 Clark County TV, KLAS-TV, and Vegas PBS. The majority of programs represented in this collection includes television shows that aired on The Discovery Channel, History Channel, and the Travel Channel.
