Abstract:	Oral history interview with Eugenia Ohrenschall Daykin conducted by Claytee D. White on August 8 and 15, 2023 for the Boyer Early Las Vegas Oral History Project. In this interview, Daykin describes her early childhood, moving from Greece to New York, then later to Washington, D.C. with her mother. Daykin attended George Washington University and Georgetown University Law Center. After learning about potential jobs in northern Nevada, she moved to the McCarran Ranch near Reno and worked for Robert Ziemer Hawkins at Hawkins Rhodes Hawkins Law. Later relocating to Las Vegas, she married her husband, John Ohrenschall, and together started a family practice. Dayton ran for the Nevada State Assembly and served 12 years, introducing bills on domestic violence protection, used car sales, and allowing judges in Juvenile Court more freedom in sentencing during her time. Digital audio available; no transcript available.
